

Jean Baxley is a counsel in the Tax Department of the Washington, D.C. office of Latham & Watkins, where she practices in the federal tax controversy area. She has planning and controversy experience in a variety of substantive areas including the taxation of insurance companies and products, reinsurance, captive insurance, economic substance challenges, certain federal tax credits, aviation-related taxes, penalties, and charitable giving.

Jean has been in private tax practice representing primarily corporate clients throughout her career. Prior to joining Latham & Watkins, she was a counsel at Crowell & Moring LLP, an Associate at Steptoe & Johnson LLP, an Associate in the National Tax office of Coopers & Lybrand (now PwC), and a Summer Associate at Davis & Harman LLP.

Jean earned her B.A. from the College of William & Mary, her J.D. from George Mason University School of Law, and her LL.M. from Georgetown University Law Center.

Jean is active in the ABA Tax Section's Insurance Companies Committee. She also has been involved in planning and programming for various Federal Bar Association tax programs.